Biographical Sketch

Charles Emerson Beecher (b. 1858, d. 1904), son of Moses and Emily (Emerson) Beecher, was born in Dunkirk, New York, on October 9, 1856. When he was a youth, his family moved to northwestern Pennsylvania and Beecher began collecting fossils from the local sandstones and shales. By the time he arrived at the University of Michigan (B.S. 1878), he had amassed a very respectable collection of fossil phyllocarids and freshwater unionids. Following his graduation from the University of Michigan, Beecher became a personal assistant to James Hall in Albany for 10 years, and then at the request of Yale's Othniel C. Marsh, he moved to New Haven to oversee the Peabody Museum's growing collection of invertebrate fossils. In 1891, Beecher was awarded his doctorate for his study on Brachiospongidae, an enigmatic group of Silurian sponges.

Although Beecher is best known for his work on trilobites, he really didn't specialize on any particular group of organisms. Instead, he was interested in biological systems, evolution, and the relationship between ontogeny and phylogeny. Beecher's promotion was rapid. He ascended to Professor of Historical Geology in 1897 and, on the death of Marsh in 1899, Beecher succeeded him as Curator of the Geological Collections, the informal Director of the Peabody Museum of Natural History.

William Healey Dall Correspondence. A letter from W.H. Dall to C.E. Beecher informing him he is sending some specimens of Amnicola and other species, and have found all on his list but three of the requested species. 001582	15 Nov 1887
William Healey Dall Correspondence. A letter from W.H. Dall to C.E. Beecher discussing Beecher's results in his investigation in regards to V. papoidea. He praises the value of Beecher's work and makes some technical suggestions. 001583	20 Nov 1887
William Healey Dall Correspondence. A letter from W.H. Dall to C.E. Beecher discussing morphology nomenclature of the teeth of the radula. 001584	29 Nov 1887

Series II: Manuscript/Research Materials, 1888-1904

C.E. Beecher manuscript material related to freshwater mollusca.

Freshwater Gastropoda. Archival material related to Beecher's work on freshwater mollusca. 001599	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. 12 cards. Each of a species of Amnicola, Bythinella etc. The cards contain radual formula for each species. 001600	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. Handwritten description with radula formula for Amnicola dalli. 001601	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. Numerous cards with radual formula, drawings etc. of various species of Amnicola, Bythinella, etc. Also there is a handwritten paper titled by Beecher as "Lingual Dentitions of American Fresh-Water Rissoidae." 001602	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. Handwritten description of Hydrobia n.sp. Includes radula formula. 001605	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. Handwritten paper titled "A new Species of Planorbis" by Beecher. Plamorbis costatus. 001606	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. 5 slips of tracing paper with figures of radula. 001610	1888-1904
Freshwater Gastropoda. Numerous radula figures of Bythinella, Amnicola, etc. 001618	1888-1904

Series III: Slide Labels, 1888-1904

C.E. Beecher slide labels.

Slide Labels. C.E. Beecher slide labels.
001608

1888-1904

Slide Labels. 35 slide box labels? They contain species names (bythinella, Amnicola, etc.), localities, some citations and radula formulas.
