Scope and Contents

The Linda Butler Papers consist of three boxes of correspondence and writings dating between the years 1927 and 1980.

The papers are divided into two sections, Correspondence and Writings. Correspondence is arranged alphabetically by correspondent. Box 1, folders 12-30, contains letters from Butler’s longtime friend, Margaret Marshall, spanning the years 1939-73. Marshall, literary editor for The Nation, discussed personal news, news of her family, and plans for the publication of manuscripts pertaining to their mutual friend, Constance Mayfield Rourke. There is also correspondence to Butler from Marshall’s daughter, Judith Fleck, and her granddaughters, Anne Marshall Fleck and Catherine Lydia Fleck. These letters contain personal news as well as news of Marshall.

The collection contains several folders of letters to Linda Butler from author Constance Mayfield Rourke. The correspondence concerns personal news, information on her research projects, her travels, publications, and an art show which Rourke was arranging. Constance Davis Rourke, her mother, discusses with the activities of her daughter and her untimely death in 1941. There is also a folder of correspondence from Mildred Fore, Constance Davis Rourke’s niece.

The Writings section is primarily composed of manuscripts by or about Constance Rourke. Included are biographical sketches of Rourke by Linda Butler, Nelle Curry, and Margaret Marshall, plus a copy of Rourke’s eulogy by Reverend Charles W. Helsely. Writings by Rourke include an excerpt from Audubon and a photocopy of the printed version of Index of American Design. Also found in this section is a photocopy of the typescript of Marshall’s autobiography, An American Memoir.

A scrapbook compiled by Butler concerning Constance Mayfield Rourke can be found in the Oversize section at the end of the collection.
