CALL NUMBER: MS 219

CREATOR: Forward, Justus, 1730-1814

TITLE: Justus Forward papers

DATES: 1752-1813

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 2.5 linear feet (6 boxes)

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: The papers consist primarily of sermons preached by Justus Forward between 1754 and 1813. Also included are correspondence, largely on church matters, other church papers, a notebook kept by Forward while at Yale College (1752-1753), and nine diaries (1759-1814) mostly with brief entries. There is one description of the military developments in the French-Indian War for the month of July, 1759. Of particular interest in the correspondence is an exchange with Dr. Martin Phelps, later excommunicated from the church, on the question of communion.

Preferred Citation

Justus Forward Papers (MS 219). Manuscripts and Archives, Yale University Library.

Biographical / Historical

Justus Forward graduated from Yale College in 1754. He studied theology with Rev. Timothy Woodbridge and was licensed to preach by the Hampshire Association of Ministers in 1755. Forward was pastor of the Congregational Church in Belchertown, Massachusetts, from 1756-1812.

Scope and Contents

The Justus Forward Papers contain correspondence, diaries, over one thousand sermons, church papers, Forward's Yale papers, one hardback book, fragments of two Congressional bills, and miscellaneous materials. The period covered is from 1752 to 1814.

Correspondence includes letters of church business, as well as debates and discussions of Reverend Forward and colleagues on religious subjects and foreign policy. Of particular interest is an exchange with Dr. Martin Phelps, later excommunicated from the church, on the question of communion.

b. 1, f. 2	Correspondence between Reverend Forward and Dr. Martin Phelps
A copy of this material is available in digital form from Manuscripts and Archives. Contact Manuscripts and Archives at beinecke.library@yale.edu to request access to the digital copy. Martin Phelps (1757-1838) was a graduate of Yale College, Class of 1776. After serving as physician and deacon in the Congregational Church in Haverhill, New Hampshire, he went to Belchertown. In 1796 his failure to join the village church provoked notice. He was finally called on by the minister (Forward) and the deacons for his reasons. The two parties rushed into print and the letters between Phelps and Forward were published. By the desire of the Reverend Aaron Bascom, the pastor of the church in Chester, Phelps removed thither. Soon a bitter controversy developed involving the entire community and Dr. Phelps was excommunicated from the church. In 1807 he was chosen as an Anti-Federalist to represent the town in the state legislature. He subsequently renounced infant baptism and was admitted to the nearest Baptist church in Hinsdale. He was instrumental in starting a Baptist society in Chester. He died there on Nov. 26, 1838. This particular correspondence consists of four letters from Phelps to Forward and a copy of Forward's preface and his remarks to the public. The letters are concerned with Phelps' arguments behind his refusal to join the church. The basic problem involves his interpretation of the qualities necessary for communion. Phelps claims that the church's practice is in opposition to the church's covenant. There has been no test to see if those receiving communion actually possess the essential characteristics of real Christians. Besides presenting his own arguments, Phelps refutes his opponent's reasons for church practice.

b. 1, f. 3	Journals (nine diaries) These journals contain little more than a daily account of the weather, deaths, and visits to friends. There is one description of the military developments in the French-Indian War for the month of July, 1759. In the diary for 1812 Forward mentions Bonaparte's march on Europe.
