Biographical / Historical

The Bloodroot Collective, a feminist-lesbian work collective formed in 1977, grew out of a women's cooperative exchange hosted by Selma Miriam in her Westport, Connecticut, home between 1975 and 1976. The collective opened Bloodroot, a vegetarian restaurant and feminist bookstore, at 85 Ferris Street, Bridgeport, Connecticut, in March 1977. At the suggestion of animal rights activist friends, the group decided to focus on providing seasonal vegetarian food. Bloodroot is named after a native northeastern wildflower whose root system supports several vertically furrowed blooms, each stamen independent yet fundamentally connected, a system reflected in the collective's organization.

The original members of the collective were Betsey Beaven, Pat Shea, Samm Stockwell and Selma Miriam. Beavan, Shea and Miriam lived together and worked full-time at Bloodroot. Stockwell left the collective in 1977 and Noel Furie, then a part-time worker, was invited to join. Pat Shea left the collective in 1984, Beaven in 2001. Liz Seaborn was a collective member between 1985 and 1995. The women, committed to the practical and political dimensions of a feminist work collective, formed intense relationships: as lovers, friends, co-workers, and political cohorts.

In the 1970s and 1980s the restaurant was a hub for feminists and lesbians. It hosted many notable feminist performers and writers. In 1980 the Bloodroot Collective organized a feminist press (Sanguinaria) to publish The Political Palate cookbook series: The Political Palate (1980), The Second Seasonal Political Palate (1984), The Perennial Political Palate (1993) and Addendum to the Political Palate Series (1997). The cookbooks contain vegetarian recipes and feminist essays on various topics. In 2007, this time as Anomaly Press, the Bloodroot Collective published The Best of Bloodroot, a two volume series of vegetarian and vegan recipes. Many of the feminist concerns raised in the cookbooks have been explored further by Furie and Miriam in publications such as Heresies, Lesbian Ethics, and Sinister Wisdom, and in vegetarian magazines. Bloodroot continues as a feminist space and vegetarian eatery.

Miriam, born Selma Miriam Davidson, was born in Bridgeport, Connecticut, to immigrant parents in 1934. After graduating Bassick High School, she attended Tufts University and studied biology. She married and had two children. Miriam, then Selma Bunks, hosted a women's cooperative exchange at her Westport home, attended women's rap sessions in New Haven in the mid-1970s, and became active in Connecticut NOW (National Organization for Women). In the late 1970s, Miriam divorced, came out as a lesbian, and decided to operate Bloodroot full-time as a feminist work collective. She was co-owner of Bloodroot until her death. She was an activist, a cook, a fiber worker, a gardener, and a writer. Miriam died on February 5th, 2025 at the age of 89.

Furie, born Noel Seymour, was born in Stamford, Connecticut, in 1944. As a child and adolescent, Furie modeled for national advertisement campaigns and later worked as a waitress in New York City. She married in the mid-1960s, moved with her husband to Bridgeport and had two children. Then Noel Giordano, Furie worked as a photographer's assistant and later began her own photography business, Noel Giordano Photography. Motherhood and housewifery swept Furie into a depression. At the suggestion of a friend, she began attending women's rap sessions. In the late 1970s Furie divorced, came out as a lesbian, and began working part-time at Bloodroot. She joined the collective as a full-time member in 1978 and later adopted the surname Furie. Furie has worked as a community organizer in Bridgeport, Connecticut. She is a cook, gardener, and photographer.

Scope and Contents

The records document the Bloodroot Collective, particularly the lives and roles of two members, Selma Miriam and Noel Furie, who maintained the materials. The records consist of correspondence, writings by members and other feminist thinkers, restaurant reviews, photographs, legal and financial records of the bookstore and restaurant, event flyers, and topical files.

Series I documents the political philosophy and personal side of the collective. The correspondence, writing, and personal files of Noel Furie and Selma Miriam are of particular interest. The correspondence offers evidence of community between Bloodroot Collective members and feminist luminaries, like Chrystos, Andrea Dworkin, Audre Lorde, and Adrienne Rich; often the collection includes photographs of these women, taken during their visit to Bloodroot. The writings illuminate political positions, and the personal files of Noel and Miriam, though sparse, provide additional information about them, including their lives beyond the collective. Series II documents the business side of the collective, namely the restaurant and bookstore. Particularly useful are the reviews and publicity materials, which document how the restaurant was received and events held. The resource files contain flyers, copies of essays, booklets, and other small publications that provide a snapshot of independent feminist publishing of the 1970s and 1980s. Series III and Series IV contain later acquisitions of printed material.

Arrangement

The records are arranged in four series: Series I. Bloodroot Collective and Series II. Bloodroot Restaurant and Bookstore. Series III November 2024 Acquisition. Series IV. January 2025 Acquisition.
