Series II: Writings, 1953-1969

9.5 linear feet (24 Boxes, 4 Folios, 6 Card file boxes)

The material contained in this series includes books, articles, a broadcast, letters to the editor, a poem, reviews, and speeches.

The books include Bible & Sword, The Zimmermann Telegram, The Guns of August, and The Proud Tower. They are arranged alphabetically by title. Included within each unit are the correspondence, research materials, various drafts, and illustrations, pertinent to the various works.

The articles and speeches are basically arranged chronologically, as are the letters to the editor. These writings cover such topics as historical events, current affairs and historiography. A fairly substantial section of the writings pertains to Israel.

The reviews deal with Thomas Woodrow Wilson by William C. Bullitt and Sigmund Freud, Ludendorff by D.J. Goodspeed, Justice in Jerusalem by Gideon Hausner, The Fall of Paris by Alistair Horne, Dare Call It Treason by Richard M. Watt, and Hitler's Spies and Saboteurs by Charles Wighton and Gunter Peis. The reviews are arranged alphabetically by the name of the author of the book.

Correspondence

Select correspondence, together with correspondence and printed matter or organizations to which BT belongs or contributes, correspondence and clippings concerning awards, and some fan mail. There is little personal correspondence, and for the most part BT has not kept copies of her replies. Within each folder, letters are not arranged either alphabetically or chronologically; nor is all the correspondence with a person likely to be grouped together. Some correspondents have not been identified, and some items appear to be misfiled. Note also the topical folders "History," "Ideas," "Israel," and "Tuchman-Biographical;" these contain some notes and drafts as well as correspondence.
