Biographical / Historical

The television news program South Africa Now first aired in April 1988. The program actively sought to fill a perceived void in news coverage of South Africa and the anti-apartheid movement in particular, stemming from media censorship measures instituted by the South African government in 1986. Produced by Globalvision, Inc., a television production company founded in 1987 by Rory O'Connor and Danny Schechter to focus on global human rights issues, South Africa Now ran weekly on public television stations throughout the United States and in fifteen other countries. Segments of the program occasionally received even wider distribution when they were aired on the CNN's Weekly World Report.

The program covered South African news, produced background and investigative reports on the affairs of South Africa and neighboring states, and provided cultural features documenting South African theater, musicians, writers, and artists. In the three years it ran, the program covered a highly turbulent era in South African history that saw severe repression of black and colored South Africans, the release of Nelson Mandela from prison, and the end of the apartheid system. Because its reporters and producers were not welcome in South Africa, the show relied primarily on material culled from the South African news, European sources, and footage shot by independent producers in South Africa and smuggled out of the country. Regular anchors, reporters, and other contributors included Carolyn Craven, Fana Kakana, Thandeka Gqubule, Mweliso Mzizi, Phillip Tomlinson, Joseph Diescho, and Eric Nadler.

Globalvision ceased production of South Africa Now in April 1991, due to lack of operating funds. Shortly before the last show aired, Globalvision, Inc. received a George Polk Award for Journalistic Excellence in recognition of South Africa Now.

Scope and Contents

The collection consists of videotapes and a small number of transcripts, log books, and publicity files relating to the television program South Africa Now, produced by Globalvision from 1988 to 1991. It includes a nearly complete run of tapes of the approximately 150 newscasts produced during the three year run of the program as well as approximately 2000 tapes of interviews, short reports, documentaries, stock footage, and other footage used in the program's production.

The collection includes visual documentation of the final years of apartheid in South Africa and includes interviews with and other significant footage of anti-apartheid leaders, including Nelson Mandela, Winnie Mandela, Desmond Tutu, Walter Sisulu, Albertina Sisulu, Albie Sachs, Joe Slovo, Thabo Mbeki, Allan Boesak, Oliver Tambo, Beyers Naude, and many others. It also documents the activities of the South African government and its leaders, particularly P.W. Botha and F. W. De Klerk. Many organizations also receive extensive coverage, such as the African National Congress (ANC), the Congress of South African Trade Unions (COSATU), and the South-West African Peoples Organization (SWAPO). Many editions of the program included the segment "Frontline Focus," which reported the news in the southern African states of Angola, Namibia, Zambia, Zimbabwe, and Mozambique. South Africa Now produced at least one cultural segment per show. The collection, therefore, contains footage of South African artists, playwrights, musicians, authors, and filmmakers, including Athol Fugard, Hugh Masakela, Ladysmith Black Mambazo, Mzwakhe Mbuli, Johnny Klegg, Gcina Mhlophe, Peter Magubane, and Nadine Gordimer. Finally, the collection documents the activities of the international anti-apartheid movement that put political and economic pressure on South Africa to end the system of apartheid.

Series III: Documentaries, 1980-1991, undated

The series includes videotapes of documentaries on a wide range of topics relating to South African society, history, and culture. The tapes were presumably compiled and used by Globalvision as source and background materials for the production of South Africa Now. It is arranged sequentially by a tape numbering system used by Globalvision and tape titles used by Globalvision have been preserved.

Materials in this series are digitized. Researchers must use the digital copies instead of the originals.

Series V: Interviews, 1978-1991, undated

The series includes raw footage of interviews conducted in the process of producing South Africa Now. Interview subjects include various South African political and cultural figures including Nelson Mandela, Desmond Tutu, Thabo Mbeki, Albie Sachs, Athol Fugard, Hugh Masekela, and many others. There are also interviews with Americans and others interested in South African affairs and the anti-apartheid movement, including Jesse Jackson and David Dinkins. It is arranged sequentially by a tape numbering system used by Globalvision and tape titles used by Globalvision have been preserved. Listed at the end of the series, there are four boxes of logbooks that provide greater details about the interviews.

Materials in this series are digitized. Researchers must use the digital copies instead of the originals.

Series IX: Jesse Jackson Diaries, 1986 August

The series includes footage that documents Jesse Jackson's efforts to fight apartheid.

Original audio, film, and video recordings, as well as preservation masters and duplicating masters may not be played. Readers may only play use copies. If a use copy of a particular recording does not exist, researchers must consult with the reference archivist for policies and procedures regarding the creation of duplicating master and use copies of original recordings.

Materials in this series are digitized. Researchers must use the digital copies instead of the originals.

Series XI: Stills, 1988-1990, undated

The series consists of video recordings of still photography of individuals, locations, and events documented in the production of South Africa Now. It is arranged sequentially by a tape numbering system used by Globalvision and tape titles used by Globalvision have been preserved.

Original audio, film, and video recordings, as well as preservation masters and duplicating masters may not be played. Readers may only play use copies. If a use copy of a particular recording does not exist, researchers must consult with the reference archivist for policies and procedures regarding the creation of duplicating master and use copies of original recordings.

Materials in this series are digitized. Researchers must use the digital copies instead of the originals.

Series XIII: Mandela in America, 1990

The series consists of footage taken for the documentary Mandela in America, a film that documents Nelson Mandela's visit to the United States in 1990, after his release from prison. The footage includes both public and private moments from Mandela's speaking tour. It is arranged sequentially by a tape numbering system used by Globalvision and tape titles used by Globalvision have been preserved.

Materials in this series are digitized. Researchers must use the digital copies instead of the originals.
