If possible the request should also include a list of specific material of interest. The review may take several weeks.

Original audiovisual materials, as well as preservation and duplicating masters, may not be played. Researchers must consult use copies, or if none exist must pay for a use copy, which is retained by the repository. Researchers wishing to obtain an additional copy of non-commercially produced items for their personal use should consult the ordering reproductions information on the Manuscripts and Archives website.

Original computer files may not be accessed due to their fragility. Researchers must consult access copies.

Digital materials contained in Series IX date from circa 1985 through 2013, and reflect a wide variety of common word processing, office, email, and audiovisual software and operating system file formats across this period.

Processing Information

Materials arrived to the repository in two accessions, one from London and one from New York City. These accessions were integrated during processing. All materials were refoldered and reboxed, and materials were rearranged to varying degrees.

More detailed notes on processing and arrangement are included in the description for each series.

Related Materials

Books were removed from the collection and transferred to the Lillian Goldman Law Library.

Separated Materials

Duplicate material and some financial and real estate records were removed from the collection and returned to the donor. Some original clippings and copies of Dworkin publications were photocopied for preservation, and the originals were returned to the donor. Commercially produced cassettes and videotapes were removed and returned to the donor. Books were transferred to the Lillian Goldman Law Library at Yale.

Approximately 331.4 GB of computer files were identified and removed from the digital materials in the collection, including deleted, duplicate, system and software files. The laptops and hard drive backups contained accounts and documents from other users in addition to Dworkin. Materials from these other user accounts were identified when possible and removed from the collection.

Biographical / Historical

Ronald Dworkin was a legal philosopher, law professor, and writer. He wrote widely in both the academic and popular press and was a faculty member at Yale University, Oxford University, New York University, and University College London. Dworkin was born on December 11, 1931 in Providence, Rhode Island. He earned a BA from Harvard University in 1953; a BA from Oxford University, where he was a Rhodes Scholar, in 1955; and an LLB from Harvard Law School in 1957.

After graduating, Dworkin clerked with Judge Learned Hand on the United States Second Circuit Court of Appeals. He then practiced law with the Sullivan & Cromwell firm in New York City. In 1962, he accepted a position as professor of law at Yale Law School, where he was later appointed to the Wesley N. Hohfeld Chair of Jurisprudence. From 1966 to 1969 he served as master of Trumbull College at Yale. In 1969, Dworkin left Yale to take a position at Oxford University, replacing H. L. A. Hart as chair of jurisprudence. Beginning in 1975, he held concurrent faculty positions at New York University and Oxford. At NYU, he founded and ran, with Thomas Nagel, the annual Colloquium in Legal, Political, and Social Philosophy. In 1997, Dworkin retired from Oxford and accepted a position as Professor of Jurisprudence at University College London.

Dworkin wrote and published extensively in both academic legal journals and the popular press. He published several books, including Taking Rights Seriously, Law's Empire, Sovereign Virtue, and Justice for Hedgehogs. In addition, he wrote frequently for a general audience in publications including the Observer (UK), the New York Times, and most frequently in the New York Review of Books, where he was a regular contributor from the late 1960s through 2013.

Dworkin married Betsy Ross in 1958; they had two children, Jennifer and Anthony. Betsy died in 2000, and Dworkin later married Irene Brendel. Dworkin died on February 14, 2013.

Scope and Contents

The Ronald Dworkin papers document Dworkin's life and career as a law professor, author, and legal philosopher. Materials primarily document his professional career and activities, including his work at Yale University, Oxford University, and New York University, as well as his academic and popular writing. A smaller amount of personal material is included, primarily from his youth.

The materials primarily contain writings and correspondence by Dworkin and other authors. Dworkin's writings include published and draft manuscript and electronic copies of books and articles, outlines, and notes. Writings by other authors include published copies, reprints, and photocopies of articles and books, and are often related to or discuss Dworkin's work. Correspondence includes typed letters in both physical and digital formats, as well as email. The collection also includes conference and event-related papers, course materials, personal financial and legal documents, research materials on specific subjects, and press clippings and reviews, along with a smaller amount of photographs, memorabilia, and ephemera. Many folders contain photocopies, clippings, or offprints of articles on a range of subjects. Groupings which focus on a specific theme have been noted. Many materials are annotated, primarily by Dworkin, but also by other unidentified authors. Dworkin's professional activities are also documented in digital and audiovisual material in a variety of formats.

Materials document Dworkin's activities from his youth through his final years. Coverage is inconsistent, however, and only a small amount of material exists for the period from the mid-1970s through the mid-1980s. The most well-documented time periods are the late 1960s and from the late 1980s until the 2010s.

Arrangement

The papers are arranged in nine series: I. Numerical Files, 1948-2006. II. Conference and Event Files, 1968, 1987-2012. III. Correspondence, 1955-2012. IV. Course Materials, Circa 1963-2003. V. Personal Files, 1938-2013, undated. VI. Subject Files, 1987-2002, undated. VII. Writings, 1955-2013. VIII. Audiovisual Materials, Circa 1980s-circa 2000s. IX. Computer Files, Circa 1985-2013.

Collection Contents

Series I: Numerical Files, 1948–2006

13.33 linear feet (26 boxes)

The series comprises writings, press clippings and newspaper and magazine copies, correspondence, financial and legal documents, and other materials related to Ronald Dworkin's career as a writer, scholar, and professor. Some personal legal and financial documents are also included. These files consist of individual items and folders, all numbered and filed in numerical order by Dworkin. Items are generally marked with a number on the cover, first page, or folder, but numbers are not continuous, as many numbers are skipped or missing from the sequence.

The writings in the numerical files primarily consist of offprints, photocopies, clippings, or printouts of published or draft versions of articles by other authors, as well as some writings by Dworkin. The writings often include a note or cover letter from the author. Many writings have annotations, primarily by Dworkin himself, but also by other unidentified authors. The authorship of many annotations is unclear. Materials with substantial annotations have been noted. The bulk of the writings are academic writings from the legal and philosophical fields, but they also include writings from popular newspapers and magazines.

The draft writings by Dworkin are often in a rough outline format and include drafts for articles as well as conference, course, and seminar lectures. Sometimes the final published title of the draft writing is unclear, or the draft is incomplete. Drafts have been identified when possible.

In addition to individual numbered items, the series contains a large number of numbered subject folders. These folders generally contain information on a topic or from a specific event. These may contain documents from across a wide range of time, regardless of their place in the numerical filing scheme. Documents within each subject folder are not generally numbered individually.

The series also contains a limited amount of correspondence. The bulk of the correspondence in the series is found in various subject folders; in general, however, the extent of correspondence is limited, and is primarily incoming correspondence. Correspondence outside the subject folders consists almost entirely of cover letters to articles or other writings.

Most materials were filed in numerical order by Dworkin when received by Manuscripts and Archives and are arranged under the "Arranged by Dworkin" heading. Occasional misfilings in this group were corrected during processing.

A smaller amount of numbered materials arrived mixed with other, unnumbered material. This numbered material was rearranged in numerical order during processing and is listed under the "Unarranged" heading.

A partial inventory of the series, created by Dworkin, is located in Series I.

Materials are filed in numerical order, as numbered and filed by Dworkin. The materials are divided into two groupings: "Arranged by Dworkin," consisting of materials filed in numerical order when received by Manuscripts and Archives, and "Unarranged," consisting of numbered materials which arrived mixed with other material, which were grouped and arranged during processing. The order of the files is roughly chronological, and generally proceeds from circa 1977 through circa 2011. However, the order is very approximate, and many exceptions occur. In general, it appears that materials are filed roughly chronologically by the time during which Dworkin used the item or folder, rather than by their date of creation.

The series consists of VHS and cassette tapes, many documenting events featuring Dworkin.

Original audiovisual materials, as well as preservation and duplicating masters, may not be played. Researchers must consult use copies, or if none exist must pay for a use copy, which is retained by the repository. Researchers wishing to obtain an additional copy of non-commercially produced items for their personal use should consult the ordering reproductions information on the Manuscripts and Archives web site.

Titles for the VHS and cassette tapes were taken directly from media labels.

Materials are grouped by format and arranged alphabetically by title within each format.

Series IX: Computer Files, Circa 1985-2013

3.67 linear feet 1 External Hard Drive 285257 Computer Files (10 boxes) (1 terabyte) (40.08 gigabytes)

This series consists of computer files documenting Ronald Dworkin's life and professional career as a law professor, legal scholar, and author. Materials include writings by Dworkin and other authors; correspondence, including typed letters and emails; course and teaching materials; and audiovisual materials.

Writings sometimes duplicate published articles or materials available in physical form in other series. However, a significant amount of unique writings are included, along with draft materials in a variety of stages. Correspondence in this series is significantly more extensive than that found elsewhere in the papers, and generally does not duplicate other materials. It includes both typed letters in digital format and emails, and covers a wide range of personal and professional correspondence which primarily documents Dworkin's professional relationships and activities as a scholar, professor, and author.

Files were extracted from one laptop, two external hard drives, two CD-Rs, two VCDs, 84 3.5" floppy disks, and one 5.25" floppy disk. Materials created by Dworkin are primarily in common word processing, audiovisual, and email archive file formats. Particularly common formats include Microsoft Office documents in .doc, .docx, .xls, and .xlsx formats; documents in PDF, Wordperfect, and XYWrite formats; and email archives and backups in .pst, .emlx, .olk14Message, and .olk14MsgSource formats. When labels were present on the original floppy disks and CD-Rs, this text was used for the item title.

Floppy disks were used in Dworkin's office at New York University and document his teaching and courses there, along with his writings for the New York Review of Books and other publications. The hard drives, laptop, and CD-Rs contain writings by Dworkin and other authors, course materials, correspondence, and other personal and professional materials.

Digital materials span circa 1985 to 2013 and are especially extensive for roughly 2005-2013. Dates were generally determined based on file creation or modification dates. However, these dates for some files reflect dates of backups or transfers by the creator or donor. In these cases, processing staff provided approximate dates based on a survey of the files.

1TB WD My Passport Ultra HD external hard drive (Item 2017-m-0051-0194) in Series IX, Computer Files, is unprocessed and may contain sensitive information or be in a physical state that would prohibit use. Researchers wishing to request access should email mssa.assist@yale.edu. The request should outline the scope and purpose of the research project, why the researcher believes the material is relevant to their project, and contact information. If possible the request should also include a list of specific material of interest. The review may take several weeks.

After accessioning through the Yale University Digital Accessioning Support Service (DASS) in 2018, Manuscripts and Archives staff reviewed and processed materials using Forensic Toolkit (FTK) software. The original disks have been retained. Using FTK, several categories of files were identified and removed: deleted files, duplicate files, file slack, files in the Recycle Bin, Thumbs.db files, resource fork files, DS_Store files, and Quicken QDATA files. Files were checked against the NSRL Reference Data Set to identify common software and operating system files, and these were also removed. Some disks and hard drive user accounts were created by users other than Ronald Dworkin. Materials from these other user accounts were identified when possible and removed from the collection.

During the processing process, efforts were made to maintain file and folder metadata wherever possible. However, due to technical limitations, folder, directory, and file metadata was changed or added in some cases, and reflects the date of processing in 2021. Individual file metadata has been maintained and reflects the state of the files on their transfer to Manuscripts and Archives. Original metadata for all directories, folders, and files has been retained in file manifests generated during processing.

Series IX is arranged into four groupings: floppy disks, optical media, external hard drives, and laptop.
