Scope and Contents

These papers provide valuable documentation of mission work of the China Inland Mission and American Bible Society in Sichuan (Szechuan), West China. Also of significance in the collection are primary source accounts of Chinese Christians, and materials related to Torrance's research among the Ch'iang people in the upper Min valley, including relating to Torrance's theory that the Ch'iang people were of Jewish descent.

The Correspondence of Series I is divided into Family Correspondence and General Correspondence. The correspondence between Torrance and his family dates from the period when he was in West China and the family was in Scotland, for the children's education, 1928-1934. This was a turbulent period in the history of West China, due to the emergence of the Communist party. Torrance returned to Scotland in 1934 and there heard of Mao Zedong's destruction of Ch'iang Christian churches.

The General Correspondence dates from 1906 to 1955 and deals primarily with Torrance's relations with the China Inland Mission and American Bible Society. A section of letters relating to the Vale/Torrance case and Torrance's departure from the China Inland Mission was restricted until 1999 but it now open.

The Writings of Series II include material written by Torrance, the memoirs of his wife, Annie Elizabeth Sharp Torrance, and material collected by Torrance. Torrance's writings include an unpublished manuscript of conversion stories of Chinese Christians, miscellaneous other stories of Chinese Christians, published articles and leaflets, and reports of his work.

Annie Torrance's memoirs date from 1883 to 1927; they document her work as a missionary serving under the China Inland Mission and the period following her marriage to Torrance. The writings collected by Torrance include reviews of his writings, Chinese manuscripts, and numerous articles related to West China and the Ch'iang people.

The Personal Items and Memorabilia of Series III include Chinese travel passes and a Chinese scroll tribute to Torrance.
