CALL NUMBER: WA Photos 444

CREATOR: Brooks, Alfred H. (Alfred Hulse), 1871-1924

TITLE: Alfred Hulse Brooks photographs and papers

DATES: 1892-1955

BULK DATES: 1898-1924

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 6.17 linear feet (13 boxes)

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: Photographs and papers created and collected by Alfred Hulse Brooks and then probably maintained by Philip Sidney Smith, his successor as Geologist in Charge of the Division of Alaskan Mineral Resources of the United States Geological Survey. The collection provides visual documentation of the work of the United States Geological Survey in Alaska. Most of the photographs were made by Brooks and other employees of the agency. Some images document joint surveys made with the Geological Survey of Canada. The photographs depict mining operations, water and rail transportation, frontier communities, and Native American villages. Locations in Alaska well represented in the collection include Fairbanks, Juneau, Kennecott, Ketchikan, Skagway, Valdez, and Wrangell, as well as sites along the rivers, including the Copper River, Susitna River, and Tanana River. Numerous images throughout the collection also document sites in Canada, particularly in British Columbia. Photographs not created by the United States Geological Survey or its employees consist chiefly of images created by commercial photographers, corporate bodies, and government agencies in Alaska, collected principally by Brooks to supplement those created by him and his subordinates. Significant components include photographs related to the Cook Inlet Exploration Expedition under the command of Captain Edwin Forbes Glenn (1857-1926) in south-central Alaska in 1898; trips made by Robert Steed Dunn (1877-1955) in Alaska, 1900-1908; and the first successful ascent of the eastern peak of Mount Blackburn (later called Mount Kennedy) made by Dora Keen in May 1912.

Processing Information

Upon acquisition, the Alfred Hulse Brooks Photographs and Papers had no discernible order. Many attributions for images in the collection derive from the material itself and from comparison with digital surrogates available at the United States Geological Survey Central Regional Library, Denver, Colorado.

Alfred Hulse Brooks (1871-1924)

Alfred Hulse Brooks, an American geologist, was born in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He was the son of Martha G. Brooks (born 1850) and Thomas Benton Brooks (1836-1900), a mining engineer and geologist. Brooks received his elementary and secondary education in Newburgh, New York. He studied engineering in the Polytechnik Instituts of Stuttgart (1889) and of Munich (1890), and graduated from Harvard University in 1894.

During his studies, Brooks worked as a junior member of topographical mapping parties of the United States Geological Survey in Vermont (1888) and northern Michigan (1889), and in a geological party investigating potential iron ore lands in northern Michigan (1891). Upon graduation from Harvard, he gained an appointment with the United States Geological Survey and engaged in topographic and geological work in the Appalachian Mountains and Michigan. In August 1897, he attended the VIIth International Geological Congress in Saint Petersburg, Russia, and studied for several months in Paris, France, at the Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle and Collège de France.

In March 1898, Brooks began working for the United States Geological Survey in Alaska. Between 1899 and 1911, he participated in six major expeditions that traversed Alaska to map its topography and geology. From 1903 until his death, he was Geologist in Charge of the Division of Alaskan Mineral Resources of the United States Geological Survey.

Brooks was a vice-chairman of the Alaska Railroad Commission (1911-1912), as well as president of the Geological Society of Washington (1911) and of the Washington Academy of Sciences (1921). In 1913, in recognition of his contributions in exploring and mapping Alaska, he received the Charles P. Daly Medal of the American Geographical Society and the Conrad Malte-Brun Medal of the Société de Géographie (Paris). In 1917-1919, he served as chief geologist of the American Expeditionary Force in France.

In 1903, Brooks married Mabel Whitman Baker Brooks (1876-1962). They had a daughter and son, Mary (born 1906) and Thomas Benton (born 1910).

Philip Sidney Smith (1871-1924)

Philip Sidney Smith (1877-1949) was born in Medford, Massachusetts. He earned three degrees in geology from Harvard (A. B., 1899; A.M., 1900, and Ph.D., 1904, where he taught geology from 1903 to 1906. In 1906, he began work with the United States Geological Survey in Alaska. In 1915, he became the Administrative Geologist of the Geological Survey and was later Acting Director. In 1925, he became Geologist in Charge of the Division of Alaskan Mineral Resources of the United States Geological Survey. Smith retired from government service in 1944.

Collection Contents

Series I: Photographs and Other Work by Employees of the United States Geological Survey, 1898-1955

4.42 linear feet

This series consists of photographs created by or attributed to employees of the United States Geological Survey in Alaska that document the natural and built landscape in Alaska, as well as extractive industries, such as mining and fisheries.

Series I is organized into four subseries: Photographs Prepared for Publication and Other Work; Photographs by Identified Photographers; Photographs by Unidentified Photographers; and Photographic Negatives and Transparencies.

	Photographs Prepared for Publication and Other Work	1900-1955
	Consists chiefly of photographs prepared to illustrate works published by the United States Geological Survey. Consists of photographic prints mounted on board or in folders. Most prints have annotations related to their reproduction. Also includes examples of maps created for publication by Brooks.
	Organized chronologically by publication or planned publication.
b. 1, f. 1-5	Eldridge, George Homans. A Reconnaissance in the Sushitna [sic] Basin and Adjacent Territory, Alaska, in 1898 Formed part of United States Geological Survey, "Explorations in Alaska in 1898," Twentieth Annual Report , Part VII. (1900). Images include Mount McKinley, Mount Susitna, Susitna River Valley, and Indian Creek.	1900
b. 1, f. 6	Purington, Chester Wells. List of possible illustrations for Methods and Costs of Gravel and Placer Mining in Alaska	1905
b. 1, f. 7	Wright, Frederick Eugene, attributed. Typewritten labels for mineral samples collected from Prince of Wales Island and the Unuk River, British Columbia Frederick Eugene Wright (1877-1953) was an American optician and geophysicist.	1905
b. 1, f. 8	Collier, Arthur J., Frank Lee Hess, Philip Sidney Smith, and Alfred Hulse Brooks. The Gold Placers of Parts of Seward Peninsula, Alaska, Including the Nome, Council, Kougarok, Port Clarence, and Goodhope Precincts (Bulletin No. 328) Photograph by Albert Barnes Kinne of Chauik Mountain from across Ophir Creek in 1903.	1908
b. 1, f. 9-10	Covert, Clermont Calvert, and Clarence Eugene Ellsworth. Water Supply Investigations in the Yukon-Tanana Region, Alaska, 1907 and 1908, Fairbanks, Circle, and Rampart Districts (Water Supply Paper No. 228) Images include hydraulic mining on Eagle Creek, Hoosier Creek, and Little Minook Creek, and Thanksgiving Creek.	1909

b. 1, f. 11-15	Porter, Elmer A., Placer Mining in the Fortymile and Seventymile River Districts Formed part of Alfred Hulse Brooks et al., Mineral Resources of Alaska: Report on Progress of Investigations in 1911 (Bulletin No. 520) Images include hydraulic mining on Jack Wade Creek, the Mosquito Fork of the Fortymile River, and Crooked Creek.	1912
b. 1, f. 16-20	Henshaw, Fred Forbes, Glenn Lane Parker, Philip Sidney Smith, and Alfred Hulse Brooks. Surface Water Supply of Seward Peninsula, Alaska (Water Supply Paper No. 314) Images include men using a large sluice box, also known as a "long tom," near Nome, and views of mining operations on Glacier Creek and Ophir Creek.	1913
b. 1, f. 21	Prindle, Louis Marcus, Philip S. Smith, and Frank James Katz. A Geologic Reconnaissance of the Fairbanks Quadrangle, Alaska (Bulletin No. 525) Line drawing illustration of a head frame for a bucket hoist.	1913
b. 1, f. 22-26	Ellsworth, Clarence Eugene, and Royal William Davenport. Surface Water Supply of the Yukon-Tanana Region, Alaska (Water Supply Paper No. 342) Images include Fortymile River, Little Minook Creek, Mastodon Creek, Quail Creek, Seventymile River, Troublesome Creek, and Wolverine Mountain.	1915
b. 1, f. 27	Ellsworth, Clarence Eugene, and Royal William Davenport. A Water-Power Reconnaissance in South-Central Alaska (Water Supply Paper No. 372) View of Port Valdez, looking north.	1915
b. 1, f. 28-34	Bagley, James Warren. Photographs that accompanied a presumably unpublished manuscript about diorite deposits in the vicinity of Sheep Creek and Kashwitna River	circa 1920
b. 13, f. 35-43	Brooks, Alfred Hulse. Maps of Alaska Distribution maps include navigable waters and railroads; copper deposits and producing areas; coal and petroleum; gold bearing areas and producing districts; vegetation; and arable land. Other maps outline physiographic provinces and mean annual temperatures and precipitation.	1924
b. 1, f. 44	Smith, Philip Sidney, and Gerald Arthur FitzGerald. Geologic Reconnaissance Map of Northwestern Alaska	1930
b. 1, f. 45-53	Waring, Gerald A. Geology of the Anthracite Ridge Coal District, Alaska (Bulletin No. 861) Images include Anthracite Ridge, Chugach Mountains, Chikootna Creek, Purinton Creek, Kutzkatna Creek, Muddy Creek, and of a diamond core drill in operation.	1936
b. 1, f. 54	List of illustrations to accompany a manuscript, probably by Gerald Arthur FitzGerald, Some Misconceptions Concerning Alaska for the Military Engineer	circa 1940
b. 1, f. 55	Photographs that accompanied a report about the Whalen Mine	circa 1940
b. 1, f. 56	Correspondence between Harvey Charles Orton of Chicago, Illinois, and Philip Sidney Smith Letters about photographs that illustrate petroleum drilling operations in Controller Bay and near the Nichawak River.	1943 May 15- June 7

b. 1, f. 57-58	Cady, Wallace Martin, et al. The Central Kuskokwim Region, Alaska; An Account of its Geography, Geology, Geomorphology, and Mineral Resources (Professional Paper No. 268) Images of the Kuskokwim River and Barometer Mountain made in June-August 1941.	1955
	Photographs by Identified Photographers Photographs created by employees of the United States Geological Survey in Alaska. The majority of photographs are probably contact prints from negatives, as well as a small quantity of enlarged photographic prints or mounted contact prints. Photographs by James Madison Hill are accompanied by their corresponding original negatives. Some of the mounted prints were likely prepared for publication. Organized by photographer and therein by the numbering schemes the employees applied to them, followed by larger photographic prints or mounted prints with the same organization. They are followed by photographs by unidentified creators.	1898-1942
b. 2, f. 59-179	Brooks, Alfred Hulse Views of Bluff, Chilkoot Trail, Chilkoot Pass, Chisana River, Copper River, Douglas Island, Eagle, Gastineau Channel, Holy Cross, Juneau, Ketchikan, Nome, Skagway, Skwentna, St. Michael, Susitna River, Sweetcake Creek, Tanana River, Tortella (which became Nenana), Treadwell Mine, Tyonek, White River, and Wrangell. Images also includes informal portraits of Brooks and other topographers, including William John Peters (1863-1942), as well as survey and mining camps; moose and caribou trophies; steamboats; and Native American communities, including totem poles and houses. A group of images also documents a trip by Brooks to Ireland, Scotland, and Switzerland in June-July 1906.	1898-circa 1910
b. 2, f. 180-202	Trip to Ireland, Scotland, and Switzerland Views from the steamship Oceanic of the coast of Ireland; sites in Scotland, including the Caledonian Canal, a bridge at Inverness, Abbotsford House, and Melrose Abbey, as well as Lochs Katrine and Lomand; and views of the Bernese Alps, Switzerland, including a glacier on Eiger, as well as views of Grindelwald and Bern.	1906 June-July
b. 3, f. 203-206	Cady, Wallace Martin Views of mining operations in the vicinity of Kuskokwim River, including Barometer Mine and Red Devil Mine.	1941-1943
b. 3, f. 207-213	Capps, Stephen Reid Views include hydraulic mining in the Yentna Cache-Creek Mining District and a pack train crossing the Russell Glacier.	1910-circa 1920
b. 3, f. 214-219	Chapin, Theodore Sheffield Includes views of along the Copper River and Northwestern Railway.	circa 1910
b. 3, f. 220-222	Coats, Robert Roy Images of hydraulic mining.	circa 1940
b. 3, f. 223-233	Collier, Arthur James Images of mining operations, probably in the vicinity of Manley Hot Springs, as well as steam boats and canoes.	circa 1900-circa 1910
