Biographical / Historical

Charles Morgan Coit was born on March 29, 1838. He was secretary-treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank of Norwich, Connecticut when he was mustered into the army on October 5, 1861. A member of the Eighth Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, Coit served as adjutant, captain, and later brevet lieutenant colonel. He fought in the battles of Antietam, Fredericksburg, and Petersburg. Coit was wounded at Fair Oaks on October 29, 1864 and was mustered out of service on May 27, 1865. Coit married Mary Hillard and had two sons, Charles and Augustus. He died by drowning on July 3, 1878 off the New London, Connecticut coast while attempting to save the life of his younger son.

Scope and Contents

The Charles Morgan Coit Papers consist of correspondence written by Charles Morgan Coit to his mother, brother, and sister. The letters span his military career as adjutant, captain, and brevet lieutenant colonel in the Eighth Connecticut Volunteer Infantry from the fall of 1861 to the spring of 1865.

The letters deal with the daily tribulations faced by Coit and his regiment and cover such topics as living accommodations and sanitary conditions in various camps, the price and availability of food and clothing, weather and travel conditions, social life, morale, discipline, and descriptions of the skirmishes.

The papers were the gift of Charles A. Coit in 1989.
