Biographical / Historical

Reverend Samuel Scoville, Sr. was a clergyman married to Harriet Eliza Beecher, daughter of Reverend Henry Ward Beecher and Eunice White (Bullard) Beecher. Henry Ward Beecher was a clergyman known for his leadership and support of women's suffrage and the abolition of slavery, and was the brother of author and suffragist Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Samuel Scoville, Jr. (1872-1950, Yale 1893), son of Samuel Scoville, Sr. and Harriet Eliza Beecher, graduated from Yale College and earned a law degree from the University of the State of New York in 1895, subsequently becoming an attorney, novelist, ornithologist, and author of a Boy Scout series of chapter books for young readers. He married Katharine Gallaudet, the grand-daughter of Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet.

The Gallaudet family included Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet (1787-1851, Yale 1805), founder and head of the American School for the Deaf in West Hartford, Connecticut, 1817-1830, and an early figure in deaf mute instruction in America. He and his wife Sophia Fowler Gallaudet had eight children, which included Alice Cogswell (Gallaudet) Trumbull (1833-1891), named in honor of the student who inspired him to establish the school for the deaf.

Alice Cogswell Gallaudet married Henry Clay Trumbull (1830-1903), a clergyman and author, an advocate for Sunday School education, and one of ten children to Gurdon Trumbull, Sr. and Sarah Swan Trumbull. His siblings included James Hammond Trumbull, philologist, and Gurdon Trumbull, Jr., ornithologist and illustrator. The children of Henry Clay Trumbull and Alice Gallaudet were descendants of Elder William Brewster, who was a founder of the Plymouth Colony in 1620, as well as Reverend Thomas Hooker, who is recognized as one of the founders of Connecticut.

Samuel and Katharine Scoville's children included Alice Trumbull (Scoville) Barry (1911-2012), an author and educator. She graduated from Vassar College in 1933 and shortly thereafter married Stuyvesant Peter Barry. Later in life, she wrote a local newspaper column in Pennsylvania, taught remedial reading, and wrote a biography of her great-grandfather, Henry Ward Beecher.

Genealogical information was sourced mainly from society applications filled in by Alice Gallaudet (Trumbull) Sparhawk, daughter of Henry Clay and Alice Cogswell (Gallaudet) Trumbull, as well as other research notes in the Scoville Family Papers.

Alice Scoville Barry Research Papers, 1870–2002

This series comprises research notes created by Alice Scoville Barry, and Barry and Beecher family memorabilia. Barry's research notes for an apparently unpublished biography titled The Trial of Henry Ward Beecher constitute the largest series in the collection and include her notes on her opinions, book drafts, and correspondence with family members and close friends, including her brother Reverend Gurdon Trumbull Scoville (1904-1993). Barry's notes are often fragmentary but are extensively labeled to detail testimonies, themes, events, and press coverage of the Tilton adultery trial.

Any requests, including by Yale, to make copies of the unpublished biography of Henry Ward Beecher by Alice Trumbull Scoville Barry using any medium, format, or technology now in existence or hereinafter devised, to upload such copies of the Property to the Internet or like media, or to publish any parts of the Property shall be directed to Roxana Barry Robinson or her daughter.

Materials are generally arranged in accordance with the original order maintained by Barry, with the exception of cases that necessitated rearrangement by Manuscripts and Archives staff to facilitate ease of access. Some notes were refiled in chronological order or with a relevant existing grouping
