CREATOR: Bourne family

TITLE: Bourne family papers

DATES: 1746–1994, undated

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 4.59 linear feet (8 boxes)

LANGUAGE: English

SUMMARY: The Bourne Family Papers consists of materials that document the lives of abolitionist, minister and newspaper editor George Bourne, his wife Mary Oland Stibbs Bourne and their descendants. The majority of materials in the collection document the professional careers of George Bourne and his son Theodore Bourne. George Bourne's papers include an Anti-Slavery Lecture of 1837 along with other religious writings. Theodore Bourne's papers chiefly relate to African American repatriation organizations such as the African Christian Civilization Society. Correspondence between the Bourne and Stibbs family in England and the United States document George and Mary Bourne's new life as they settled throughout the United States. Poems written by members of the Bourne Family and others such as abolitionists James Montgomery, Helen Maria Williams and John Greenleaf Whitter are also included.

Biographical / Historical

George Bourne was born on June 13, 1780 in Westbury, Wiltshire, England. In 1804, he married Mary Oland Stibbs (1780-1851), and they moved from England to the United States where they had ten children. George Bourne and his family moved frequently, settling in New York, Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. In 1810, George Bourne moved his family to New Glasgow, Virginia and became a Presbyterian minister. It was in Virginia that Bourne witnessed the American slavery system and as a result, became one of the founders of the American Anti-Slavery Society. Bourne wrote many anti-slavery articles as the editor for the Christian Intelligencer and the Baltimore Daily Gazette. George Bourne wrote The Book and Slavery Irreconcilable (1816) and delivered The Anti-Slavery Lecture of 1837 in Newburyport, Massachusetts. George Bourne died in New York on November 20, 1845. George Bourne's sons Theodore Bourne (1822-1910), William Oland Bourne (1819-1901) and Rowland Hill Bourne (1812-1886) held similar anti-slavery and religious interests. William Oland Bourne and Rowland Hill Bourne became ministers while Theodore Bourne participated in African American repatriation movements such as the African Christian Civilization Society, which sought to encourage African American immigration to West Africa including Liberia and present day Nigeria.

Scope and Contents

The Bourne Family Papers consist of materials that document the lives of abolitionist, minister and newspaper editor George Bourne, his wife Mary Oland Stibbs Bourne and their descendants. The majority of materials in the collection document the professional careers of George Bourne and his son Theodore Bourne. George Bourne's papers include an Anti-Slavery Lecture of 1837 as well as other religious writings. Theodore Bourne's papers relate to African American repatriation organizations such as the African Christian Civilization Society founded by Henry Highland Garnet. Correspondence between the Bourne and Stibbs family in England and the United States documents George and Mary Bourne's new life as they settled throughout the United States. Poems written by members of the Bourne Family such as Theodore Bourne and his brother William Oland Bourne are found in the collection. Other writings from abolitionists James Montgomery, Helen Maria Williams and John Greeenleaf Whitter are also included.

Arrangement

Organized into four groupings: I. Correspondence (1793-1919). II. Professional Papers (1793-1910). III. Personal Papers (1793-1910). IV. April 2023 acquisition, circa 1746 - 1994, undated.

Collection Contents

Series I: Correspondence, 1793-1919

Family Correspondence includes letters exchanged between the Bourne and Stibbs family in England as well as in the United States. Mary Oland Stibbs Bourne corresponded frequently with her family in England about family life in the United States. She also corresponded with her children as they grew into adults.

General Correspondence includes letters from friends and colleagues of the Bourne Family. George Bourne wrote frequently to other ministers and abolitionists such as Dan Bryan regarding anti-slavery movements. Correspondence to Theodore Bourne chiefly comes from members of the African Christian Civilization Society and the African Aid Society. Abolitionist and physician Martin R. Delany, teacher Robert Campbell and Lord Alfred Churchill of England corresponded with Theodore Bourne with regard to African American repatriation.

The series is organized into two subseries: Family Correspondence and General Correspondence.
